Alumni Executive Council Meeting

SECRETARY'S MINUTES

FRIDAY, MAY 24, 1968 FISHER AUDITORIUM

The spring meeting of the Executive Council of the General Alumni Association of Indiana University of Pennsylvania was held on Friday, May 24, 1968, in Cogswell Hall Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The President, Dr. Arthur F. Nicholson, presided and extended greetings.

It was moved by Miss Catharine Taylor and seconded by Mrs. H. E. Sanford that we dispense with the reading of the minutes of the October 1967 meeting since they had been published in the December 1967 Alumni News Bulletin.

Miss Mary L. Esch gave the financial report of the general operating account after which Mrs. Ward Johnson presented the Annual Giving Fund report. Both of these reports appear in the Financial Statement.

President Nicholson announced that the carillon had been installed in the bell tower of John Sutton Hall. He said that it had an excellent sound system and two concerts would be played at 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. on Alumni Day. Dr. Nicholson stated that the association would provide additional tapes in the future.

Mr. Richard M. Strawcutter, a member of the campus alumni unit, reported that the unit would continue its soft drink party on Homecoming Day and that they also plan to sponsor an activity for the 1968 graduating class when they return to campus for Swing-Out or some other single event in the next year. Dr. Nicholson said that the association might also initiate a five-year reunion in the future to hold the interest of recent graduates.

Mrs. Ward Johnson moved that the Executive Secretary of the General Alumni Association be directed to set up a special promotional reserve allocation of $2,000 to be made available to Dr. Willis E. Pratt on his retirement for travel expenses in relation to the promotion of Annual Giving in the General Alumni Association, membership in the General Alumni Association, or special conversations with individuals who might have large gifts to be made available to the university either through the General Alumni Association or the Foundation of the Indiana University of Pennsylvania. Motion seconded by Mrs. Dorothy Hoehler and passed. This allocation would be made available through the treasury of the General Alumni Association to Dr. Pratt as needed for alumni promotion endeavors.

Mr. Lawrence D. Bergman reported on the University Foundation—its Board of Directors, its structure, and its endeavors to secure federal and private grants for the university. He stated that the Foundation, a non-profit tax-exempt organization, and a part of the university structure, had already purchased a house presently used for the home management course for students in the School of Home Economics. They are in the process of purchasing land from the urban renewal authority to provide space for a parking area.

At this time Mrs. Ward Johnson stated that inasmuch as the Foundation for the Indiana University of Pennsylvania is working in what we deem to be the best interests of our Alma Mater and inasmuch as three of the members of the Foundation Board of Directors—Mrs. Ward C. Johnson, Mrs. H. E. Sanford, and Dr. Arthur F. Nicholson—are directly elected by the Alumni Association to serve on the Foundation Board and the Foundation Board of Directors also contains Alumni Association members—Mary Alice St. Clair representing the Board of Trustees, Mr. Samuel Furgieuele representing the Administration of the University, and Dr. Willis E. Pratt, as President of the University, and Mr. Lawrence Bergman, also an alumnus is Executive Director of the Foundation—she moved that the Alumni Association give an outright gift of $5,000 from the Annual Giving Fund to the Foundation for its general operating account to be used for various projects of the Foundation for the greater good of Indiana University of Pennsylvania. Motion seconded by Mr. Samuel F. Furgieuele and passed.

After a brief report on ASCO, Mr. Samuel F. Furgieuele made a motion seconded by Mr. Richard M. Strawcutter that the General Alumni Association continue its membership in ASCO and pay dues as of July 1, 1968. Motion passed.

Following her report on the Annual Alumni Workshop and urging alumni to attend the workshop August 9-11, 1968, Mrs. H. E. Sanford presented the following motion that the Association award Dr. Willis E. Pratt an honorary life membership in the General Alumni Association, Incorporated of Indiana University of Pennsylvania as of May 25, 1968. Motion seconded by Mrs. Mary Park Jack and approved.

Dr. Nicholson then called on Miss Angie Marshall. She stated that in light of the long and distinguished service of Miss Mary L. Esch as Executive Secretary of the General Alumni Association of Indiana University of Pennsylvania and in light of the fact that her small stipend for part-time work as Executive Secretary of the Alumni Association really is obtaining for us practically full-time service as Executive Secretary, I should like to move that it be directed that the salary of the Executive Secretary—in this case, Miss Mary L. Esch, be $1,680. retroactive to January 1, 1968, I so move. Motion seconded by Mrs. Ward Johnson and passed.

Following the announcement by Miss Mary L. Esch of class meetings on May 25, 1968, their locations, and the other events to take place on Alumni Day, Dr. Nicholson adjourned the meeting at 9:45 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,
S/Catharine Taylor, Secretary

Following the reading of the minutes of the May 1967 meeting by Miss Catharine Taylor, President Nicholson asked for approval. It was moved by Mr. Roland Brady and seconded by Mrs. Edna Straub that the minutes of the May 1967 meeting be approved. Passed.

Miss Mary L. Esch presented the Treasurer's Report as it appears in the Financial Statement.

Dr. Nicholson reported on the purchase and installation of the carillon and the concerts which would be played at 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Dr. Pratt greeted alumni and expressed his sincere thanks for the carillon, alumni endeavors to retain the main part of John Sutton Hall, support of the University Foundation and Annual Giving Fund and for the loyal services of Dr. Arthur F. Nicholson in the past two decades.

Indiana University of Pennsylvania Past, Present, Future

by
LARRY A. JUDGE
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS

Indiana University of Pennsylvania stands today as the only totally state owned and state controlled university in Pennsylvania, numbering among its student body more than 7000 fulltime undergraduates.

As a state university, Indiana prides itself in a tradition of service both to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, her citizens and students, and to higher education generally, endeavoring at all times to provide this service both fully and well in as many different ways as possible.

Perhaps the first thing the visitor to the Indiana campus will take notice of is the physical campus itself. Well landscaped and dotted with more than 200 oak trees, the university campus is presently comprised of 175 acres and is regarded as one of the most beautiful campuses in Pennsylvania.

There are 58 buildings on the campus along with a new athletic area development. A total of approximately 25 of these buildings and dormitories have all been added to the Indiana campus within the past decade. In addition to several modern dormitories, five may be said to stand above the others.

Weyandt Hall, a more than $4 million science complex housing the Department of Biology, Chemistry and Physics along with attendant facilities, has represented one of the most significant instructional advances in the development of the university. Nearly two years in construction, this was dedicated in October of 1966.

Deadline for news for October issue is September 1.

Memorial Field House, a multi purpose facility featuring a main gymnasium seating more than 3000 people for basketball as well as many other events, was constructed at a cost of $2 million and completed in January of 1966. The impressive George P. Miller Stadium seating 7500 is adjacent.

Ackerman Hall, noted as one of the more beautiful buildings on campus, houses the School of Home Economics. Cogswell Hall is a large building containing an auditorium, classrooms and offices of the Department of Music and Music Education. Foster Dining Hall is also of recent construction.

And for those—and they are many—who still can't quite believe the phenomenal growth of Indiana University in terms of both campus and buildings over the past few years, they "haven't seen anything yet." For the present expanded campus still represents only a point of departure for that to come.

All to be under construction in the immediate future are nine more buildings of diversified purposes with a combined total project cost approaching $15 million. These along with several privately constructed dormitories to be maintained by the university should be completed by 1970.

Accounting for nearly half of that total cost figure is approximately $7 million designated for construction of a complex of three eight story men's dormitories which will house a total of 1315 students when completed. This ranks as the most ambitious single building project in university history.

Instructional buildings to be constructed include a Learning Research Center, a new Military Hall and a Fine Arts Building. Also to be constructed are a Maintenance Building, a new Health Center and a University Student Center. Beyond this, another dining hall and two women's dormitories are in initial planning stages.

All of this building is part of a total campus plan designed to project planned campus buildings and development through 1980 (when a university enrollment of approximately 15,000 is foreseen) and representing a tentative blueprint for future growth.

Calling for a total $90 million public investment between now and 1980, the plan envisions a North Campus (comprised of the present campus area plus a relatively small area of land to be acquired adjacent to the main campus) and a vast new South Campus to the southwest of the present campus.

Tentatively planned for the North Campus area prior to 1980 are two new dining halls, a greenhouse, home management facilities, women's health and physical education building, new field house, four classroom buildings, a major new library with a million volume goal and several parking facilities.

Envisioned for the South Campus are a new stadium as well as a possibility of constructing several integrated residential-instructional units in which students would both live and dine and attend classes while retaining contact with the North Campus for library, cultural and social purposes.

Increased building and development on the Indiana campus is in line with stepped up enrollments at the university. Enrollment for the coming 1968-69 academic year will reach approximately 7400 fulltime undergraduates, with a projected mark of 15,000 slated for 1980 and 20,000 not too long after that.

This is indeed the same school which was first founded as Indiana Normal School, housing all students and conducting all classes and activities in a single building (the present John Sutton Hall women's dormitory), in 1875. Curriculum at that time was a two year undertaking.

The institution became a four year degree granting college, Indiana State Teachers College, for the first time in 1927 and proceeded to gain a statewide and even nationwide reputation as one of the nation's outstanding colleges of teacher training. The name was changed to Indiana State College in 1960.

Indiana University of Pennsylvania was then designated as a state university December 16, 1965, by Act 430 of the Pennsylvania state legislature and just two days later was fully accredited as such by the Middle States Association, an agency recognized as authority for such accreditation.

The university is operated by a nine man Board of Trustees appointed by the Governor of Pennsylvania, with the President of the university elected by the Board subject to approval of the Governor and charged with administration of the affairs of the university.

A great part of the recent growth and development of Indiana University must be directly attributed to Dr. Willis E. Pratt, President of the university for the past two decades since 1948, during a period in which Indiana has been transformed from state teachers college to state college to university.

When Dr. Pratt first became President, the then Indiana State Teachers College enrolled not quite 1500 undergraduate students and employed approximately 100 faculty members. The campus at that time comprised only approximately ten of its present principal structures.

At that time exclusively an institution for the training of teachers, Indiana was organized into ten academic departments. Under the imaginative and inspired direction of Dr. Pratt, Indiana has thus grown from that beginning to the thriving state university it has become.

Enrollment has skyrocketed more than five times to a present total of approximately 7900 undergraduate and graduate students, and the university now employs 450 faculty members. The Graduate School was organized 11 years ago in 1957, and there are now seven undergraduate schools within the university.

These seven schools are in turn organized into approximately 35 different academic departments offering instruction in more than 40 academic areas. Offering three different bachelor's degrees and master of education, master of arts and master of science degrees, Indiana will soon offer two doctoral programs as well.

Of the approximately 7000 undergraduate students now enrolled at the university, 70 per cent of them come from the top fifth of their high school classes and virtually all others from the second fifth. With increasing enrollments, Indiana has at the same time seen a corresponding increase in quality of students.

For the most part, students of the university come from working class and middle income homes whose families represent a cross section of social and cultural life.

Indiana has always prided itself in being able to make available to these students a quality education at a reasonable cost; the great majority of the students find it easily possible to finance the total costs of their education at just a little more than $1200 per year.

They are taught by a faculty a third of whom have been awarded doctorates and more than half of whom have completed all course work toward such a degree. Faculty members have authored more than 100 books for high schools and colleges and have contributed nearly 1000 articles to various periodicals.

The seven undergraduate schools of the university include the School of Education (still the largest and still traditionally strong), School of Arts and Sciences, School of Business, School of Fine Arts, School of Home Economics, School of Health Services and School of Continuing and Nonresident Education.

Newest of these seven schools is the School of Health Services, at present divided into Departments of Men's Physical Education and Women's Physical Education. It will be the continued goal of this school to prepare not only teachers of physical education but also professional people for health services.

In addition, the university now sponsors several pre-professional training programs in cooperation with other institutions of higher learning or with some specialized postgraduate schools, and several more such programs are planned. There is also a trend toward increasing interdisciplinary study.

With its elevation to the status of a university in 1965, Indiana University of Pennsylvania has maintained its traditionally excellent reputation for the training of teachers while at the same time introducing new academic programs for the training of members of a great many more professions.

One such new program is offered by the Department of Criminology, which is not only offering both two year associate degree and four year baccalaureate degree programs as preparation for manifold career opportunities in the field of law enforcement but has also been quite active in sponsoring special institutes on campus and extension courses throughout the state for policemen.

Still other new programs include a four year degree curriculum in nursing in cooperation with nearby Latrobe Hospital, a rather unique Department of Institutional Foods Services instructing in the operation of large scale dining operations and a Center for International Studies designed to train career officers for government and diplomatic foreign service.

As the first of then 14 state teachers colleges authorized to give graduate study courses leading to a master of education degree, Indiana through its Graduate School now offers work in elementary education as well as 17 specialized areas of elementary and secondary education in addition to the master of arts and master of science degree programs in nearly ten areas.

Indiana's first doctoral level offerings are planned for July of this year, with a program leading to a doctorate of education in elementary education, and for July of 1969, with a program leading to a doctorate of philosophy in English.

It has been said that Indiana University of Pennsylvania is a "product of a century of progress and a decade of transition." There is every reason to believe that this past century, and more particularly this past decade, represent only a point of new departure for achievements yet undreamed of.

Editor's Note: The Alumni Citation for 1967 was awarded to Flossie Wagner Sanford, a member of the Class of 1917. In accepting the citation she recalled much of Indiana's history which will, no doubt, sound a responsive chord in the hearts of many members of the alumni.

INDIANA! IT IS A MAGIC NAME

INDIANA! It is a magic name—awakening, for me, memories as does no other. Dr. Nicholson, Dr. Pratt, and members of the Alumni Association, my heart is filled to overflowing. My appreciation is boundless. In my opinion, this is one of the highest honors that can come to one of Indiana's own. I am grateful that this, my school,—my home for many years,—has felt that those things which have helped to spell Happiness and Satisfaction for my life have been considered worthy of recognition. Thank you very much.

When I was graduated from high school we prepared our own program. My "speech" which I called "Life is What We Make It" (I believed it then and I believe it now) began with these words, "In the old Latin myths we read of the god, Janus. Janus had two faces—one face was turned toward the Past while the other faced the Future. Today I am thinking in almost the same vein. I am looking back over the years in which, in varied capacities, I knew Indiana as she passed through the different stages of development and I'm looking forward to the Indiana yet to be.

On Alumni Day in 1915 I first saw the campus. I was thrilled and delighted by all that I saw and heard. My heart was bursting with anticipation. This was to be MY school!

The fall of 1915 found us enrolled as students. After making my program, helped by Charlie Ruffner from my home town, a "veteran" who had been here for the Spring Term, Miss Jane Eyre took me to my room, 413, the smallest room in John Sutton Hall!

The first girls I met were from Altoona—some of them are here today—my good friends after fifty years! That was the beginning of two happy, busy years. What big things—and what little things—I remember! Sitting with Colleen Ball on the Model School steps the first morning of classes, not knowing we were on holy ground. Classes—tests—the Clear Record list read in chapel each month—the teachers—some very good,—some not so good. Senior arithmetic with Mr. Gordon or J. C. Smith. Miss McElhaney whose low, quiet voice led us along paths of beauty. "Sawdust Jackson" and "agerculture" class, and, of course, heading the list was student teaching! Each of us has his own picture of student teaching days. Before Miss Leonard's portrait in John Sutton Hall, we pause today,—remembering. Miss Leonard with her gracious, kindly manner and her never changing ideals as to what makes a lady—her expectation that all her "gals" be ladies—and the sadness in her face and voice when, occasionally, she was disappointed. Oh, yes,—from Indiana were learned many things not found in books!

Remember, too—quiet hour on Sunday afternoons, lights out at ten o'clock, wild hour with the "five minute bell" followed by "last bell," church roll taken each Monday morning—Mr. Brown—will we ever forget him?—who, so our hall teacher told us, was a man as well as an elevator man—the Kiski game—the Y.W. girls making sandwiches for sale as Miss Araminta McLain urged that the butter come to the very edge of the bread! Nellie and her mother! Could any girl who lived in John Sutton Hall during those years forget Nellie? Or Laney whose lusty bell told us each morning that a new day had begun? State Board we took in Recreation Hall at the end of each year. I think we passed, but, even now, I wonder!

In two years we were seniors, proudly trudging, on a rainy Monday morning to the Town Hall for Commencement. Thereafter, we were "Indiana girls"—and a few boys. The First World War had taken many of our boys who, at best, were few. Being an "Indiana girl" or being labeled as "Indiana trained" was a badge of honor.

A state law passed in the summer of 1917 gave some of us (I was one!) cause for rejoicing—$55.00 became the minimum wage for a teacher in Pennsylvania!

Two years later, the impossible happened! I might have dreamed that, one day, I'd be the wife of the President of the United States or some little thing like that—but—to teach in Indiana—in the Model School—with Miss Ackerman and Miss Gray who were my idols! It could not be true—but it was! That first year I lived in the Gordon house—the year beautiful, little Eleanor started to school. Near the close of the year when I moved into John Sutton Hall, Mr. Gordon threatened that if I moved, he would not allow Eleanor to continue to say, "God bless Miss Wagner" in her prayers.

The next year, to my joy, Inez Buchanan, our classmate, joined the Training School group. Often Miss Stewart told us that Indiana was a fine place for ladies of 40 or older, but it was no place for young girls. True—Indiana did not furnish too many young men!

From Miss Ackerman, whose smile could make or whose frown could ruin a day, I learned more psychology and the true, the deeper principles of teaching than from any classroom teaching. Miss Ackerman, to me, will always be the perfect teacher—the soul of the Indiana of that day. Miss Gray, my critic teacher, of whom I stood in deepest awe as I taught Ivanhoe and geology to ninth grade students, was my co-worker and my friend during these happy years that passed so quickly.

Some of my dearest friends go back to these days—students and teachers alike. Some are gone but many have kept in touch through the years. Pictures of the children used to come with the Christmas card—now the pictures are of grandchildren!

Last, but by no means least, are the dear children of the Training School (we had been graduated from a Model to a Training School)—and the fine young men and women who were the student teachers. I meet them everywhere and, almost always, I am proud. Stalwart leaders they are—usually in education, but, sometimes, in other fields. So many have reached renown.

The Indiana of 1917 consisted of four main buildings but it was a school of stature. The men who had guided its growth stood tall among their fellowmen. Dr. Waller I never knew but of his influence for good I've heard much. Some of you did know him. A campus building bears his name. Then came Dr. Ament, Principal when we were students. Dr. Ament, austere and unapproachable—or so he seemed to us, the students—was ever working for the material improvement of the school.

Dr. Keith followed. I can see him now, as, looking over his glasses, as was his wont, he talked to some of us about the invitation to serve as Superintendent of Public Instruction for the Commonwealth. As Dr. Ament had stood for material growth, Dr. Keith fostered professional growth for our school and later for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which was greatly blessed in this great educational leader. Dr. Keith came back to us—to stay forever in Indiana. Keith School bears his name.

Dr. Foster—of great heart and hearty laughter, brought to Indiana the warmth of spirit, love of people and good will toward all that spelled social growth for Indiana. How fitting that this beautiful dining hall should bear his name! Dr. Foster, too, came back to Indiana to stay.

To Dr. Walsh who was ever ready to fill a need, and to Dr. Uhler who for a few short years was Indiana's leader, we must pay tribute. All contributed to the perfect whole. These were the men who guided the destiny of our Alma Mater in the years I knew it best.

We pause in tribute to these men, to all dear friends of Indiana, and to members of our alumni ranks who are no longer here. Teachers, too, are in that group. It is my belief that they are not far away. The pictures that come to mind will differ. Each will see the faces of ones he held most dear—but I can see them, as can you, rejoicing in this school that was theirs as well as ours.

Indiana, a privately owned normal school, was established 92 years ago—in 1875. Of John Sutton Hall, at first the only building, Dr. Wick-ersham said, "This is the largest and best equipped building for the training of teachers in the United States." It cost $180,000, a tidy sum to be raised in that day by private enterprise. Good news it is for all alumni that John Sutton Hall is to be saved for posterity. From this normal school we were graduated in 1917.

During my first years as a teacher in Indiana, it became a state owned institution controlled by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

In 1927 we became a state teachers college. This was, indeed, a time for rejoicing. Later, the word, teachers, was dropped from the name. Could that have been in anticipation of something yet to come?

In the meantime buildings had been added, enrollment had increased greatly (no longer was there need for an Indiana ambassador to search the state for students), the faculty had grown, the beautiful campus had become even more beautiful. It was during this period that, heeding Miss Stewart's words, "If Flossie isn't careful, she'll lose that nice young man," my Indiana life was exchanged for that of a homemaker. Thereafter my connection with the school was as an active member of the growing group of alumni. It was then I first knew our good Dr. Pratt.

We are coming now to more current happenings. 28 years after becoming a college, largely through the untiring efforts of our president, Dr. Pratt, who was responsible for preparing our school for its new status, through our friends in the Legislature—as Senator Pechan—and through the efforts of you, her alumni, as a Christmas gift in 1965, Indiana became the Indiana University of Pennsylvania. And—just what has that meant?

New schools have been added, new curricula have been established, more buildings have been built. There is a large and well equipped staff and a student body excelled by none. That is our Indiana today. And the future—what does it hold? More buildings, expanding enrollment, a growing faculty, fine facilities? O, yes, these things we see, but much, much more. If we are to continue to grow in stature, we must use our new status—our new power, if you will—wisely and well. May we continue to have as leaders God fearing men and women who excel as people as well as educators. As we succeed in equipping students to take their places in, not one, but in many walks of life, may we continue to train men and women in the arts of truth, honesty, courage and wisdom—in the virtues by which the lives of our founding fathers were guided—to the end that Indiana—the Indiana University of Pennsylvania—may continue to produce alumni who will bring honor and renown to our Alma Mater. Whether graduated from the Normal School of early days, the State Teachers College or the Indiana University, Indiana is our Alma Mater which, were she to speak, might say—and I quote, "They call me Alma Mater. My sons and daughters are many. Through the years they come and go. In festive, happy mood they return for a day. With words of tender praise they speak of me. Mid laughter and tears they bring forth from Memory's treasure store. 'Tis then I think with some assurance of what they sought and found in these halls and on this campus. Knowledge, learning, skills they all acquired in a measure. Few failed to find and carry with them into life that spirit which makes men strong, the spirit which causes men to strive for the right. They call me Alma Mater. With love and God-given encouragement, I follow them." As, for 50 years, she has followed us! May we, as individuals, be worthy of the heritage that is ours! May our loved Indiana be worthy of the heritage that is hers!

Indiana! It is a magic name!

A. R. Pechan and Wm. E. Buchanan Awarded 1968 Alumni Citation

A. R. PECHAN

WM. G. BUCHANAN

State Senator Albert R. Pechan and state Representative William G. Buchanan, both of whom represent Indiana in the Pennsylvania legislature, were awarded the 15th Annual Citation for Distinguished Service as part of Alumni Day activities at Indiana University of Pennsylvania Saturday, May 25.

Presented by the General Alumni Association of the university during day long activities which attracted hundreds of alumni to the Indiana campus, this Citation was awarded to Sen. Pechan and to Rep. Buchanan for their outstanding service to education over the past years.

Both legislators were quite instrumental in Indiana University of Pennsylvania assuming and realizing full university status, particularly in guiding Senate Bill #1 and the final House Act 430 which granted that status in December of 1965 through the Senate and House respectively.

Sen. Pechan, elected by his colleagues in the Senate to the position of Assistant Floor Leader (or Whip) in 1955, still maintains this position today. He represents a Senatorial district comprised of Armstrong, Clarion, Indiana and Jefferson counties.

First nominated and elected to the Senate by both political parties in 1948, Sen. Pechan then represented only Armstrong and Butler counties. Two legislative reapportionments have since increased his district to its present size.

He has become over the past 20 years the first state Senator from his district to be elected to more than two terms and has sustained his election record through the two special reapportionments and as many special elections to maintain his seat in the legislature by increasing majorities.

Most recently, in the April primary of this year, Sen. Pechan defeated three different opponents, his vote exceeding by nearly 3000 the combined totals for all three candidates; he carried every county of the four in his district by healthy majorities.

As chairman of the Senate Public Health and Welfare Committee, Sen. Pechan while in office has been responsible for passage of much health and welfare legislation which has been acknowledged across the United States as outstanding, including Medical Assistance for the Aged (Pennsycare).

In addition to this chairmanship, Sen. Pechan has been a member of the Governor's Hospital Study Commission and of the Governor's Advisory Committee for Comprehensive Mental Health Planning.

Vice chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, he has been a member of Senate committees on Agriculture, Appropriations, Banking, Education, Forest and Waters for Game and Fish, Highways, Military Affairs and Aeronautics, and Special Legislation.

He authored a bill in 1959 to transform Pennsylvania's then state teachers colleges to state colleges and now advocates the setting up of several state universities to give an opportunity to more state students to acquire a quality education at low cost.

Elections reform laws, a bill permitting 18 year olds to vote and an act requiring the teaching of Pennsylvania and American history in schools have all been introduced by Sen. Pechan, and he was an original co-sponsor of the Keystone Shortway (Interstate 80).

Sen. Pechan served this past year as an ex officio member of the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention, assigned to membership with both the Convention Preparatory Committee and the Convention Rules Committee. He is also secretary of the Joint State Government Commission.

Senior member of the Board of Trustees of Indiana University, Sen. Pechan was first appointed to that body in 1947 and has since been appointed and reappointed by five different Pennsylvania governors; he has served as its vice president and is also a member of the University of Pittsburgh Board of Trustees.

Extremely active in civic affairs over the years, Sen. Pechan served for 30 years as a member of the Board of Education of the Ford City schools and was the first president of the Board for the Ford City Union School District. He was also a member of a statewide Comprehensive Vocational Rehabilitation Planning Project.

Chairman of the statewide Pennsylvania Cancer Crusade this year and director of the Pennsylvania Cancer Society, Sen. Pechan has been co-chairman of the 1966 Armstrong County Cancer Crusade and vice chairman of the 1967 Pennsylvania state crusade.

An Armstrong County Easter Seal chairman, Sen. Pechan has headed both Boy Scout and Red Cross fund raising drives and has been a member of the advisory board of the Salvation Army. He is a member of several different social and service organizations.

Listed in reference books Who's Who in the East and Outstanding Men in the United States, Sen. Pechan has received many awards of varying types, including two special awards granted by the U.S. Army Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) at Indiana University.

A native of Ford City, Sen. Pechan graduated from the University of Pittsburgh School of Dentistry; he has been a dentist by profession. A veteran of the U.S. Army during World War II, he volunteered as a private and rose to the rank of major; he attained the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Army reserve.

Now completing his seventh term in the state House of Representatives, Rep. Buchanan has served in that chamber for a total of 14 years. He has been chairman of the committee on Higher Education and a ranking member of those on Appropriations, Industrial Development and Mines and Minerals.

In addition to Act 430 which concerned university status for Indiana, Rep. Buchanan had sponsored the 1959 House bill which transformed all of the 14 then state teachers colleges of Pennsylvania to state colleges.

He then helped sponsor and secure passage of an act which permitted the expansion of the curriculum at these state colleges by authorizing the institutions to expand their range of educational instruction into the liberal arts field and the area of the arts and sciences.

Rep. Buchanan also helped pass an act giving the Pennsylvania state colleges and Indiana University the authority to cooperate in and accept grants and assistance for research projects and programs. Also in the field of education, he recently authored a Religious Literature Act which permits public high schools to offer an elective course in religious literature.

Helpful in his past four terms in securing $25 million worth of General State Authority (GSA) projects for Indiana County, Rep. Buchanan was instrumental in obtaining a $3.7 million appropriation for the Weyandt Hall science center at Indiana University and $2 million for Memorial Field House.

Also active in shaping constructive legislation concerning the coal trade, Rep. Buchanan sponsored the Bituminous Coal Open Pit Mining Conservation Act which is now considered the model strip mine law in the United States and a Coal Miner Training Act designed to reinforce manpower in that field.

A teacher of American history at Purchase Line High School in Indiana County since 1947, or for the past 21 years, Rep. Buchanan has been a supervisor of Indiana University student teachers for the past 19 years since 1949 and a teacher of school law and practicum for the university since 1957.

A graduate of Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Rep. Buchanan completed a master of letters degree at the University of Pittsburgh and has done two additional years of graduate work beyond the master's at Pitt. A native of Rayne Township and graduate of Marion Center High School, he is a World War II veteran of the Army Air Force.

Music Department Receives Federal Grant for Summer Institute

The Music Department of Indiana University of Pennsylvania will conduct a six (6) weeks Arts and Humanities Institute in Music. Sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education under Section 13 of the Arts and Humanities Act of 1965, the Music Institute will run from June 24—August 2, 1968.

Twenty-five elementary and junior high school teachers will be selected to participate in the summer music workshop for advanced study in "Re-emerging Concepts of Music Education."

Some of the finest elementary and junior high school teachers will be exposed to dynamic new and innovative music teaching techniques. The Music Institute will explore six (6) major areas of innovative approaches to music education: Eurythmics, Music Reading, the Baritone Ukulele and the Spanish Guitar as instructional instruments, the Suzuki Violin Method, the Recorder as a "legitimate" musical instrument, and Creative Musical Productions.

Director of the Institute, Dr. William C. Willett, Chairman of the Music Department at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, has arranged for a distinguished staff of specialists to teach the Institute courses. Four outstanding visiting special staff members will conduct courses. Mr. Gerald Burakoff, a performer on the recorder, author, and teacher, will instruct an intensive course on the recorder. Mr. Richard Stephan, Coordinator of Music for the Hamburg, New York School System, will present a course on the Spanish Guitar and the Baritone Ukulele as valid instructional tools in music. Miss Adela Bay, Polish pianist and music educator from New York, will teach a special class on reading music. And Mr. John Kendall, author and renowned protagonist of the Suzuki Violin Method, will demonstrate the famous Suzuki method of teaching violin to children.

The Institute also features four Indiana University of Pennsylvania faculty members: Miss Olive Fornear, Assistant Professor in the Music Department, will present a course in Eurythmics, correlating physical movement and the flow of music; Mr. Herbert Wildeboor, Director of the IUP Opera Workshop, will conduct a special workshop on Musical Productions at the elementary school level, emphasizing the creative and aesthetic musical experience; Mrs. Clarabel T. Davis, Assistant Professor in the Music Department, will act as Workshop Director; and Dr. Robert Murray, Director of the Instructional Resources Center, will provide instruction and consultation in the use of various instructional media called for by the staff of the Institute.

Hundreds of applications have been received from 49 States, the U.S. Protectorates, and from as far away as Brussels, Belgium, and Bombay, India. From the applications received, only 25 elite elementary and junior high school teachers and 16 alternates will be selected. Participants and their dependents will be eligible for Institute stipends.

The Arts and Humanities Institute in Music is unique in that it combines both workshop and course study. The areas presented are of utmost significance to music education today, but the number of specialists available is still so small that the workshop remains the most practical way of disseminating these ideas and techniques. However, to tie them all together, the Institute will conduct continuing courses in Eurythmics and creative Musical Productions to be a kind of warp for the innovative musical fabric. Fifteen youngsters selected from the Indiana School System will be used as a demonstration and laboratory group for the courses and workshops.

Indiana University Commended for Dormitories Following Visit by Legislators

Representative William G. Buchanan, chairman of the Committee on Higher Education of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, stated recently that Indiana University of Pennsylvania possesses an excellent system of 24 well maintained dormitories on its three campuses.

Rep. Buchanan further stated that he is in full agreement with a statement by Rep. Max Homer of Allegheny County, a member of a special legislative committee investigating private dormitories in Pennsylvania, that "Indiana's dormitories are the finest in the Commonwealth."

Referring to the committee who visited the university Wednesday through Friday, March 6-8, Rep. Buchanan commented that they had been "hard pressed to find defects in one of the private dormitories."

Of the 24 dormitories at the university, ten are Commonwealth-owned and 14 privately owned. Twenty of the 24 have been constructed during the past 15 years and are "modern and well equipped housing facilities," according to Dr. Willis E. Pratt, University President. Two of the older four are privately owned, two state-owned.

Rep. Buchanan's remarks came in a statement following the three day visit to the Indiana main campus as well as to the Armstrong County Center in Kittanning and the Punxsutawney Center by the committee of three state legislators.

This committee had been charged by Governor Raymond P. Shafer with inspecting all private dormitories now housing students on the campuses of the 14 state-owned institutions of higher learning, that is Indiana University of Pennsylvania and the 13 state colleges.

Private dormitories on the main campus at Indiana University accommodate approximately 1600 students and account for the employment of approximately 150 instructional and non-instructional employees, a payroll of approximately $1 million per year and an annual income to Indiana Borough and White Township in taxes of approximately $45,000.

Applications Being Accepted For New Doctoral Programs

Applications are currently being accepted for enrollment in the doctor of education program in elementary education now being offered at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

This doctoral program, the first to be offered at the university, is being initiated with its first course offerings this summer. Administration of the program is being performed by the Graduate School, Dr. I. L. Stright Dean, and the Department of Elementary Education.

A second doctoral program, this one to lead to a doctor of philosophy degree in English, will get underway in September of 1969. Both programs have been fully approved by the university's Board of Trustees as empowered by the legislature of the state of Pennsylvania.

The degree program in elementary education offers several specialized avenues of advanced study leading to the doctorate of education, which is regarded as a professional degree primarily designed for those who wish to become superior teachers or teacher educators.

The program consists of the equivalent of at least three years of full academic work including formal course work, independent study and research. A dissertation and comprehensive and final oral examinations are required of all students, with a five year limit placed on all requirements.

A one year residence requirement, calling for one full academic year of fulltime enrollment on campus, is mandatory. Total credits required are 64 to 80 of work in general studies, foundations of education, research techniques, human growth and development and areas of specialization.

These areas of specialization for the moment are in either curriculum and instruction or in elementary science with programs to be initiated in the near future in elementary mathematics, the social studies and the language arts. Each student in his general studies also elects an academic strength.

Liberal opportunity is afforded for elective course selection, for strengthening or adding an area of general studies or major specialization or for continuing further in the study of human growth and development as related to learning.

IUP Hosts Spring Meeting of Pennsylvania Classics Teachers

College and university as well as secondary school teachers of Latin and Greek from throughout the state of Pennsylvania recently met on the campus of Indiana University of Pennsylvania for the annual spring meeting of the Pennsylvania State Association of Classics Teachers.

Highlighting the program was a discussion of "Two viewpoints on the Place of Classics in Today's Schools" presented by Dr. B. Anton Hess, Commissioner for Basic Education for the Department of Public Instruction of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and Robert M. Sebastian, a member of the Board of Education of the School District of Philadelphia.

Speaking on "Creative Practices for Latin in the Seventh and Eighth Grades" was Charles F. Graber of the Department of Latin Education at the State University of New York College at Albany. Presiding over the session was Leonard DeFabo of Indiana University.

The Pennsylvania State Association of Classics Teachers annually schedules two such conferences as the one at Indiana, the first in the fall in Eastern Pennsylvania and the second in the spring at this end of the state. Vice president is J. Joel Farber of Franklin and Marshall College.

Board of Trustees Elects Officers: Approves Rules for University Senate

Dr. John E. Davis, President of the Board of Trustees for Indiana University of Pennsylvania, was recently reelected to that position by the Board at its regular spring quarterly meeting. His reelection is effective for the coming 1968-69 academic year.

Also elected to official positions at that meeting were Dr. Albert R. Pechan as vice president, Mary Alice St. Clair as secretary and Arthur P. Miller as treasurer. The selection of all four in each case represents a reelection.

Acting on recommendations of a Special Committee on the Revision of Rules and Regulations of the University Senate, the Board approved a revised document of such rules and regulations. Changes in the original document drawn up in 1966 to govern the newly formed Senate were largely procedural.

Membership in the Senate has been expanded to include university faculty members holding the rank of instructor and assistant professor as well as the top ranks of associate professor and professor. The original Senate had been limited in membership to the latter two ranks.

While certain provisions concerning the organization and function of the Senate and its committees were included in the revised document, it is stressed that the basic philosophy on the nature and operation of the body remains unchanged.

A new section on "Purpose" states that the Senate "is to provide a formal means through which the faculty and the administration, working as a unified group under the leadership of the President, may participate in the governance of the University through the establishment of University policy."

The Board at its meeting also approved two school districts as centers for conducting university student teaching for the first time. The districts are Brookville Area School District and Southwest Butler County School District.

These additions bring to 80 the total number of school districts with which Indiana University now cooperates in its student teaching program. In this program all students of the School of Education complete either nine weeks or a full semester of practical experience under a cooperating teacher.

Contract for student health and accident insurance was awarded to the Guarantee Trust Life Insurance Company, with Robert Baird as local agent, through August of 1969. University students are responsible for arranging for their own adequate insurance coverage.

Head Basketball Coach Herm Sledzik Elected Area Eight Coach of the Year

Herm Sledzik, head basketball coach at Indiana University of Pennsylvania who directed his Big Indians to a fine 18 victory-six defeat record and an NAIA District 18 playoff bid this campaign, was recently elected NAIA Area Eight Coach of the Year.

Previously named NAIA District 18 Co-Coach of the Year along with head mentor Jim McDonald of Edinboro State College, Sledzik was elected area coach of the year by vote of all head basketball coaches representing the 78 NAIA colleges and universities in Area Eight.

Area Eight is one of eight such areas for NAIA basketball in the nation and is comprised of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, the New England states of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

In guiding his Braves to their 18 win-six loss slate this year, Sledzik gave Indiana its best record in the roundball sport in seven years since the Tribe chalked up 17 victories against five defeats in the 1960-61 season and its first NAIA district playoff entrant in nine years since 1958-59.

During the regular season the Maroon and Slate lost only at Westminster 86-61, Edinboro State 87-85, Bloomsburg State 88-84 in overtime, Saint Vincent 78-77 and Grove City 86-74 before losing out to Westminster 66-59 in the district playoffs at Geneva College.

Reserve Officers Training Corps Honors Many at Awards Ceremony

More than 40 different individuals and organizations were honored for various past accomplishments at the second annual President's Awards Day Parade ceremony sponsored by the U.S. Army Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) at Indiana University of Pennsylvania Thursday, May 9.

Dr. Willis E. Pratt, President of the university, was awarded an Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) Certificate of Appreciation for his past 20 years of continuous support rendered in initiating and then nurturing the growth of the university's ROTC program.

Also receiving AUSA awards were The Tribune-Democrat of Johnstown, The Indiana Evening Gazette and State Senator Albert R. Pechan for their outstanding contributions to both the university's ROTC program and to the Army generally.

Dr. Charles Leach, Director of Development at the university, Bernard Ganley, administrative assistant to the President, and Charles Davis of the Department of Music and Music Education faculty were granted First U.S. Army Certificates of Appreciation for their outstanding work relative to ROTC.

Master Sergeant William Schafer was awarded the Bronze Star medal for exceptionally meritorious service performed while participating in ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of South Vietnam. He served in Vietnam from August of 1967 through this past January.

Promoted to the rank of sergeant major and staff sergeant respectively were Master Sergeant John R. Dale and Sergeant John Hyer. In addition, a total of approximately 35 awards were presented to student cadets of the ROTC corps at the ceremony.

Four students, regarded as the outstanding cadets for each academic class, were awarded Superior Cadet Decorations. These four are all in the top quarter of their class in both ROTC work and academic standing and have displayed qualities of discipline, courtesy and character for military leadership.

These four are Michael P. Lambert, a senior from Indiana, Randall V. Drake, a junior from Mount Union, Thomas D. Scott, a sophomore from Kittanning, and Lawrence Rapski, a freshman from Portage.

The Indiana University of Pennsylvania President's Award, presented annually to the freshman cadet who has demonstrated excellence in military and academic scholarship, was granted to Gary W. Feathers of New Paris in Bedford County.

American Legion ROTC Scholastic Excellence Awards, granted annually to a senior and a junior who have demonstrated excellence in academic endeavor and qualities of leadership and have actively taken part in related student activities or sports, were granted to senior Ronald V. Crosmun of Hillsdale in Indiana County and junior Ray A. Tucker of Latrobe.

Presented American Legion ROTC General Military Excellence Awards as demonstrating excellence in military studies, outstanding qualities of military leadership, discipline, character and citizenship were senior Neil J. Rapski of Portage and junior John F. Wagner of Pittsburgh. They are both in the top quarter of their academic class and top tenth of their ROTC class.

Recognized as the corps' best company commander was senior Thomas J. Watchko of Indiana, as best platoon leader junior David D. Kling of Pittsburgh, best first sergeant Scott, platoon sergeant sophomore Mark J. Brumbaugh of Springdale, and squad leader sophomore Thomas A. Judice of Johnsonburg.

Accepting a Best Drill Company Award for B Company in its total performance was its company commander junior George A. Bobick of Clymer. Selected best drill platoon was the second platoon of G Company, that corresponding award accepted by its commander James Serkoch, a junior from McKees Rocks.

Also presented to members of the Kaydeens women's auxiliary to the corps in recognition of their interest in the ROTC program and participation in its activities were the Kaydeen Service Ribbons. Accepting these in behalf of the Kaydeens was Arlene Soffa, honorary cadet colonel, sophomore from West Mifflin.

Brigadier General William M. Mantz, Commanding General of the Defense Personnel Support Center of Philadelphia, toured the university campus and acted as reviewing officer for the Awards Day Parade. Dr. Pratt ranked as guest of honor at the parade.

Officials from area school systems visiting the university for the purpose of learning more about junior or high school level and senior or college and university level programs also attended the parade. Following the parade came a reception for those receiving awards, their relatives and invited guests.

Ganley Leads IUP Golf Team To Top Honors in NAIA Tourney

They say the third time's the charm, and so it was for Indiana University of Pennsylvania and its coach Bernard Ganley as the Big Indians copped both team and individual championships in the recent National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) national tournament at Bemidji, Minnesota.

This tournament represented the third such event the Braves had entered in as many years, finishing fifth in the nation last year and fourth the season before. In the 1967 tourney the Maroon and Slate had finished just five strokes off second place but 20 from the top.

The Braves as a team in this year's NAIA event finished just ten strokes over par for the four medal play rounds, netting 1162 team strokes. This stood them a full 30 ahead of second place Detroit and is believed to be a tournament team record over a par 72 course.

Senior Rick Hrip of Butler, Pennsylvania, took down the individual trophy by carding rounds of four under par 68, par 72, 73 and 74 for a total of 287, one under par. Sophomore Rick Worsham of Oakmont, Pennsylvania, ranked third nationally at 290, junior Terry Eisenhute of Sewickley, Pennsylvania, fourth at 291.

Senior Mike Arnold of Bedford, Pennsylvania, and junior Dave Prosser of New Castle, Pennsylvania, posted 298 and 299 respectively. Hrip, Worsham and Eisenhute were all named to the NAIA All-American team, and they join Prosser, who achieved that honor last year by finishing fourth.

After the first day of play, the Braves found themselves tied for the team lead. They moved to a ten stroke lead after the second round and still lengthened this to 23 and 30 at the end of the third and fourth rounds for the second lowest team total in the history of the tournament.

On the basis of the fact that the Big Indians had finished in the top five tournament teams both of the past two years and of their impressive 15-3-1 spring season against some rugged competition, the Indians had gone into the NAIA tournament as one of the top seeded entrants.

Indiana qualified for this meet by winning the NAIA District 18 tournament at Armco Country Club near Butler, Hrip's hometown, finishing seven strokes ahead of second place Clarion State College. Hrip ranked as tournament medalist with an outstanding 67.

Before winning that tournament, the golfers had copped their own Indiana Invitational for the first time in its five year history by besting the likes of Pennsylvania State University, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburgh, West Virginia University and Bucknell University.

During the regular campaign the Big Indians registered some rather impressive victories over Rutgers University 4-3, Penn 4-3, Clarion State twice 10½-7½ and 6-0, West Virginia 6-1, Colgate University 4-3 and Ohio University 4-3.

Only losses in dual or triangular meet competition came at the hands of West Virginia 5-2, Penn State 6-1 and Pitt 4-3. It is significant, however, that the Braves were to come back to top West Virginia in a later dual match and to outduel all three of these entrants in the Invitational.

Throughout the campaign Ganley was consistently able to field five or six men, depending on the requirements of the match, who all scored in the 70's far more often than not. And from this year's squad he will lose only Hrip and Arnold through graduation.

This entire chain of events this campaign, particularly the national small college championship, has brought home with dramatic effect the ability of coach Ganley to attract more than his share of fine golfers to Indiana. He has built an enviable tradition over the past few years.

And this record has not gone unrecognized, as, even before the Tribe won this year's NAIA nationals, Indiana University of Pennsylvania was picked, along with Princeton University, as one of only two teams from the East to compete in the NCAA national tournament in Las Cruces, New Mexico, June 18-22.

If you move, notify Alumni Office of New Address.

Arthur J. Rooney Hall Dedicated: Houses Over 200 IUP Male Students

Arthur J. Rooney Hall, a men's dormitory housing a total of 200 students on the Indiana University of Pennsylvania campus, was dedicated in an appropriate public ceremony at the dormitory Saturday afternoon, May 11, 1968.

This building has been named in honor of Arthur J. Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers professional football club in the National Football League who has been active in that league since 1933 and who at one time attended the then Indiana Normal School.

Rooney along with members of his family and Bill Austin, head coach of the Steelers, and Bill Nelson, the team's star quarterback, also attended the ceremony.

Presiding over the dedication was Charles L. Klausing, athletic director and head football coach at Indiana University. Klausing, along with Samuel F. Furgiuele, Director of Public Relations, co-chaired arrangements.

Dr. Willis E. Pratt, University President, extended greetings to the several hundred persons who attended the ceremony. Remarks were also given by William Cole of College Housing, builders of the dormitory, and Dr. John E. Davis, President of the university's Board of Trustees. Invocation and benediction was pronounced by Rev. Jerome Weiksner, chaplain of the Newman Center at the university.

Dr. Norah Zink, professor emeritus at the university who taught many years in the Department of Geography prior to her retirement a few years ago, presented the Dr. Norah Zink Scholastic Award which she grants annually to that football player whose scholastic average shows the greatest improvement.

"Art" Rooney has been associated with sports practically all his life. Even as a young boy in his hometown Pittsburgh (where he lived with his parents, five brothers and two sisters), he exhausted himself and his friends with endless practice at a local playground.

As a result of his tireless efforts, he excelled in a number of sports, among them football, baseball and boxing. His ability as a great football player was such that Knute Rockne wrote him a number of times to try to persuade him to go to Notre Dame.

And his ability as a baseball player resulted in his being signed by two major league clubs—the Boston Red Sox and Chicago Cubs. Rooney was equally proficient in boxing, winning the international lightweight and welterweight championships and representing the United States in the Olympics.

After attending Indiana and Duquesne University, Rooney organized a semi-professional football team. It was this team which led him into the National Football League with the Steelers.

Rooney has many other interests as well, including a thoroughbred breeding farm in Maryland, and serves as chairman of the Board of the William Penn Racing Association of Philadelphia.

A lifelong resident of Pittsburgh's North Side, where he still lives with his wife (they have five sons who are all married), Rooney will be able to watch progress on the new Pittsburgh municipal stadium from his front porch, a project which he has supported since its inception.

Rooney Hall has been privately constructed by College Housing of Pittsburgh at no cost to the taxpayers, with the agreement being that Indiana University provides supervision and services for the 200 men students living there.

Built last summer as an addition to Oakland Hall on Oakland Avenue near its intersection with Maple Street, Rooney Hall together with Oakland house a total of 458 men. Total project cost for the two dormitories reached $1.4 million.

Included in the Rooney Hall section are a large well-decorated recreation and lounge area as well as approximately 100 two man dormitory rooms. The structure is of red brick, three and a half stories high, and is adjoined by parking space for 100 cars and a large recreation room.

IUP Department of Criminology Conducts Course for Municipal Police

Indiana University of Pennsylvania's Department of Criminology recently conducted a 40 hour Basic Field Course for Municipal Policemen, including all university campus security officers and 20 other police officers representing 14 police departments in four counties.

With Sgt. Robert D. Aiken of the education and training staff of the Pennsylvania State Police Troop A in Greensburg as instructor, this course was intended to give police officers a grounding in the basic fundamentals of their work.

The course continued in meetings twice weekly, Mondays and Wednesday evenings, through May 8. In charge of arrangements was Harry W. More, chairman of the Department of Criminology, with Maynard F. Rowley, chief of the university Campus Security Guard, as host chief.

Instruction was given in introduction to police work, formal steps in criminal procedure, the law of arrest, the law of evidence, search and seizure, larceny and burglary, the traffic picture, patrol techniques, accident investigation and laboratory police aids and fingerprints.

The police students also explored police and community relations, public speaking, testimony by the police officer, crowd control, interviewing techniques, working with the emotionally disturbed and handling police firearms.

Municipal police departments participating in this program included Blairsville and Saltsburg in Indiana, Cambria Township in Cambria County, Plum in Allegheny County and Export, Greensburg, Idlewild Park, Latrobe, Ligonier, Ligonier Township, Loyalhanna Township, Southwest Greensburg, Vandergrift and Youngwood in Westmoreland County.

Dr. Pratt Discusses Nurses Program With Latrobe Hospital Administrator

Dr. Willis E. Pratt, President of Indiana University of Pennsylvania, recently met at the university with D. K. Bullens, administrator of Latrobe Area Hospital, and Dr. John Chellman, Dean of the School of Health Services at the university, to discuss a new cooperative degree program in nursing.

In this program, to be initiated in September of this year, the university will cooperate with the Latrobe Hospital in granting graduates of the program, four academic years plus one summer in length, the degree of bachelor of science in nursing.

In this cooperative program freshman and sophomore years will be devoted primarily to a liberal arts education curriculum at the university campus. Clinical experiences in all phases of patient care will then be provided at the hospital for an interim summer session and through the junior and senior years.

New Private Apartment Dormitory To Contain 102 Units When Completed

Now under construction to house women students of Indiana University of Pennsylvania beginning in September of the 1968-69 academic year are 54 units of a new 102 unit apartment dormitory to be known as Carriage House. The remaining 48 units will be completed by next January.

Carriage House is located on the north side of Oakland Avenue (Route 286) between the intersection of Oakland with Maple and South Thirteenth Streets and the borough line and in the same general area as the recently constructed Oakland and Rooney Halls men's dormitories.

Being constructed by and to be owned by College Housing, Incorporated, the three story brick structure will be devoted to use by women students of the university, with Indiana University providing supervision and services for those students.

Each of the 102 units will include a kitchenette and bath plus three additional rooms. These three rooms can be set up either as three bedrooms for six women or as two bedrooms and a living room for four women. All are completely furnished, and all are electrically heated.

Each of these suites has been designed so that the building can be converted to apartments for married students, graduate students and faculty members. The structure has been surrounded with more than adequate parking facilities.

It is planned that a second high rise apartment building will be constructed to the north of Carriage House to contain apartment units for graduate students. A new roadway will be constructed from Oakland Avenue to Locust Street, and a gatehouse will be erected.

This tract of land was purchased by College Housing some time ago from the Pennsylvania Electric Company, which had used the land as a maintenance building area. That structure will be converted and renovated for use as a recreation area and snack bar. The total tract comprises a plot of six acres and lies completely within the borough of Indiana.

New MS Programs Approved

Curricula for master of science degree programs to be offered within the framework of the Graduate School at Indiana University of Pennsylvania have recently been approved by the university's Board of Trustees.

The master of science program for chemistry calls for required course work in inorganic chemistry, organic chemistry, physical chemistry and analytic chemistry as well as six credits of research. Dr. Paul R. Wunz Jr. is Department of Chemistry chairman.

The physics curriculum calls for 18 credits in physics, six in mathematics and six more for a thesis to thus account for a minimum of 30 graduate credits. A comprehensive examination, either oral or written, will also be required. Dr. Richard E. Berry is chairman of the Department of Physics.

Swimming Team Completes First Season

Indiana University of Pennsylvania recently completed its first year of varsity swimming, and despite a dual meet record which shows three victories opposed to seven losses, the season has to be rated a success both to the team and swimming coach Eugene Lepley.

Starting with a squad which included only seven swimmers with prior scholastic competition experience, coach Lepley formed a team which made a more than respectable showing in all of its regularly scheduled meets and the final Penn-Ohio meet.

The most outstanding performance of the season for the Big Indian swimmers was given by diver Bob Crowther. Altogether, the sophomore compiled eight first places in ten meets and set a school high of 223.8 points in his event. He also collected two firsts in the 200 yard breast-stroke, recording his best time in that event at 2:35.

Deadline for news for October issue is September 1.

Dr. Willis E. Pratt to be Featured In Soon-To-Be-Published History

Dr. Willis E. Pratt, president of Indiana University of Pennsylvania, will be featured in a book currently being prepared by the Department of History of the University of Bologna, Italy.

Entitled "La Resistenza a Bologna," the work will contain first-hand reports of a number of persons personally involved in the resistance movement in Bologna during World War II.

Dr. Pratt's contribution to this work, (the third of three volumes, the first of which has already been published), concerns a million dollars worth of radium (approximately one-fiftieth of the world's supply at that time) which was then held by the University of Bologna.

Dr. Pratt was part of an American-British army team which was charged with running the operations of the city of Bologna after it had been wrested from the Germans, who were in full retreat northwest of the city.

Responsible for restoring the recently-captured areas, Dr. Pratt had set up headquarters in the city's municipal building when he was approached by a person who turned out to be a physician on the staff of the University of Bologna and one of the most valued members of the underground during the two to three years of the German occupation of the ancient city.

Distraught at having lost half of the University's supply of radium to the Germans the year before, the physician and several of his colleagues, their wives, and two of his sisters, had hidden the rest of the radium in the basement of his home and by clever devices had succeeded in keeping the secret from the Germans who had searched his home several times during the occupation.

Dr. Pratt was taken by Dr. D'Aiutolo, the physician, to the spot where the radium had been buried. With a pickax, the concrete was broken through. The radium, which was found to be intact, was then retrieved for continued use by the University's clinic.

Dr. Pratt provided the account of the radium incident at the request of Professor Luciano Bergonzini and Dr. D'Aiutolo. The volume will also contain material provided by Dr. D'Aiutolo and other professors of medicine at the University of Bologna.

IUP Recent Site of Meeting On "Problem of Stroke in W. Pa."

Indiana University of Pennsylvania served as the recent site of a preliminary meeting on "The Problem of Stroke in Western Pennsylvania" as sponsored by the Western Pennsylvania Regional Medical Program, a cooperative effort representing a total of 30 different counties in this area of the state.

Formal presentations were made at this meeting concerning the regional medical program, premonitory indications and prevention of stroke, care of the acute stroke, stroke rehabilitation and long term and home care for the victim of stroke.

Discussion groups dealt with the development of committees to plan a regionwide stroke conference; case finding, diagnosis and prevention of strokes; the care of stroke patients; and extended and home care. These sessions were led by physicians representing the Western Pennsylvania program.

This program was first established by the University Health Center of Pittsburgh in 1967 as part of a national effort to reduce death and disability from heart disease, cancer and stroke.

The goal of its cooperative effort is to share knowledge and resources so that medical doctors might be able to attempt to reduce the time gap between the discovery of new knowledge in these areas and its practical application to their patients.

850 Awarded Degrees At Spring Commencement

More than 850 graduates received baccalaureate and graduate degrees from Indiana University of Pennsylvania in annual spring commencement exercises Sunday, May 26, 1968 at George P. Miller Stadium.

Delivering the principal address as featured speaker at the commencement was Frank S. Hopkins, a career foreign service officer with the U.S. Department of State and former newspaperman who has held a variety of significant positions.

Included in those receiving degrees were 810 undergraduates who were granted various baccalaureate degrees (574 bachelor of science in education, 92 bachelor of arts, 32 bachelor of science in art education, 69 bachelor of science in home economics and 41 bachelor of science in music education).

Two undergraduates were awarded the degree of bachelor of science in the area of business management for the first time. They are Jerome J. Purcell of Pottsville and Robert James Turner from Johnstown.

Leslie Oxnard of Alexandria in Huntingdon County became the first graduate of the Department of International Education.

Also awarded were 49 master of education degrees as well as four master of arts degrees and a master of science degree (granted by the university for the first time to Joseph Colantoni of Oakmont in the area of mathematics), making a total of 864 university students and graduate students receiving degrees.

Also awarded were 28 military commissions in the U.S. Army as second lieutenants, representing completion of the four year Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) program. Five of these commissions were granted in the Regular Army, 23 in the Army Reserve. A U.S. Naval Reserve commission was also presented on the occasion of commencement.

Receiving certificates of attendance were five foreign exchange students who attended the university during the past year. They were Annet de Waard and Henriette Adolphine Andree van Eerde of the Netherlands, Irma Olga Furlanetto of Argentina, Panayiota Georgiadou of Cyprus and Sumio Oikawa of Japan.

Three foreign students also received four year degrees at this commencement. Dr. Pratt conferred all academic degrees at the commencement exercises, while Dr. Ralph W. Cordier, Dean of Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculty at the university, introduced the deans of the eight schools which comprise the current organization of the institution.

Military (Army) commissions were granted by Lt. Col. Charles B. Stevenson, professor of military science and commandant of the ROTC at the university. Invocation and benediction were offered by Dr. G. Warren Smucker, former pastor of the First Methodist Church of Indiana and now of Greenville, and Rabbi Eliaezer Ben-Yehuda of Beth Israel Synagogue in Indiana.

Marshall G. Flamm, president of the university Faculty Association and a member of the Department of Special Education (Speech and Hearing), led both the processional and recessional. Donna White, a junior from Junea in Indiana County, and Kathleen Myers, a junior from Altoona, provided organ music.

Three different receptions were sponsored following commencement at Foster Dining Hall. One was for all those receiving graduate degrees, arranged by the administration of the Graduate School.

The two others were for all those granted military commissions, their families and friends, arranged by the ROTC, and for those foreign students earning four year degrees and their friends, arranged by the Foreign Students Club.

Why, Eleven Teaching Positions

by

Mary Edna Flegal

Not what you think, I was not "fired," but came near it twice. Maybe this is a record for places taught, I would like to know if it is.

My first position was in 1895 and in my home-town of Clearfield, Pa., at $40 per month, and of all grades in the first. I was a high-school graduate and had taken the Clearfield Co. exam for teachers. I was reared on a dairy-farm, had two much-older sisters and a brother 18 months younger. Without playmates, I knew nothing about children and had not entered school until I was 9.

The second year I was given Grades 1 to 4 inclusive. I did a much better job (not so much "over-their-heads") but I was intelligent enough to feel my inadequacy, so I entered Indiana Normal School to find out "how to do it."

At the end of two years and graduation, I took a position as teacher of Grade 7 in Philipsburg, Pa. This turned out to be a severe blow. I had spent two happy years as a student and now found that two big boys (15 and 16 years old) were determined to run out whoever dared to control them. With frazzled nerves I made it through that year. The following year I was assigned to a well behaved Grade 6. It is worth noting that the next year a man took over and tolerated those two outlaws just two weeks when he had them expelled.

My aim now was to get rid of discipline, get a higher salary, and college teaching. When a position came up with a small raise ($5 or $10 was a big raise in that day) I went to Irwin, Pa. and taught Grade 7 for a year and a half. School there was fine and I had a good time socially.

My fourth position was Grade 5 in Wilksburg, Pa., where I lived with cousins and spent a delightful two years teaching there.

Next, my High School Principal and later Superintendent offered a position as teacher of English and Art and as principal of a Junior High in Greensburg, Pa. This I thought was a promotion and leading to what I wanted to do. But, after four well spent years, a chance came up in a Junior High in Pittsburgh, Pa. at a salary of $90 per month, which looked "big" in 1909.

The school was in the mill-district of the city where living and social conditions were very limited, so I lived on "swanky" Perrysville Avenue which necessitated, every morning and evening, taking four streetcars to reach school. I became the best car-hop in that section of the city.

Here I had respect for the principal who would have his school second to none. However, I was teaching English to children, 80% who never heard English at home and 25% of them failed on exam. Yet I refused to teach English by rote as my colleague was doing with failure negligible. I resigned and went to T. C., Columbia, where I obtained the bachelor's degree.

Now 1914 and my next position was to head the art department in the Teachers College at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. I felt I had "arrived" as a college teacher and at a fine institution where I spent four wonderful years during World War I. While here I became a Socialist and that was before Norman Thomas had made Socialism respectable. It was no more respected then than Communism is today. Socialism usually involves pacifism which caused me to make many remarks that were unpopular during a war.

For example—some faculty members boarded at a cafeteria where I sat at a table opposite one who had been a minister and later received his Ph.D. from Heidelberg, Germany. One morning he came to breakfast and spread out his newspaper which had the headline, so many "Bosch Killed and Wounded." He exclaimed, "That's the way to do it and when they have finished over there, come over here, and do up those of the same extraction." He knew my ancestry was German. I looked him straight in the eye and said, "Doctor, your kind of religion is not worth a damn."

After similar remarks I received a suggestion in writing from the dean that I could not go on without being more guarded in speech. I handed in my resignation and went to T. C., Columbia, to work for the master's degree.

At the end of that summer, 1918, I took a position as Supervisor of Art in Johnstown, Pa. Here was a hot bed of politics in which I refused to become involved, but as usual, I expressed myself as a Socialist and Pacifist which naturally did not make me popular at the end of World War I.

I was not asked to resign, but was made uncomfortable. So, at the end of the year I did not apply. Again I went to T. C., Columbia and finished my work for the master's degree.

In 1920, fortified with two degrees from T. C., Columbia, I was invited to teach art in the Columbia Summer School.

Next I accepted a position as Supervisor of Art in both White and Colored Schools in Durham, N. C. where I stayed 6 years. There I learned to love both Southerners and Negroes. Ever since that experience I have crusaded for the Negro's cause.

Now 1926, my final position was as Director of Art at Indiana Teachers College (now Indiana University of Pennsylvania) where I remained my last 15 years. With a staff of 8, including myself, we in a difficult time built up a department from 7 to 77 students.

The department was small enough to do what I had always wanted to do—cut out formality and displace it with comradery between faculty and students. It worked—the Art Department became known as one "happy family."

Summers from 1920 to 1928 and the springterm of 1920, I was Art Instructor at T. C., Columbia University, where my work was with graduate students only.

First "Alumni Band" Reunion a Success

On October 7, 1967, over forty former University Bandsmen gathered at Cogswell Hall for a "rehearsal." Of course, much time was used in renewing old acquaintances and reminiscing.

After a short "warm-up," the ALUMNI BAND marched to the practice field to be incorporated as part of the 1967 Homecoming festivities with the University Marching Band. With all their experience, once through the routine sufficed and the "show" was ready.

A short informal "meeting" with coffee and donuts followed the rehearsal. Plans were discussed for future appearances of the Alumni Band. The feeling of the group in attendance was very enthusiastic, so they recommended that the reunion be an annual affair. It was also suggested that the arrangements be made that would include a luncheon (with wives) before the parade begins.

Prizes were given to the men who had traveled the longest distance and also the representative of the earliest graduating class. The longest distance traveled was by Ray Vernall (1959), from Colonial Heights, Va. Ben Arellano and Frank Scipione shared the honors of representing the Class of 1954.

As the Director of University Bands, I would like to thank all who participated. Despite the years that have gone by, the band sounded great. Since the Alumni Band will be an annual affair, I am hoping that all former bandsmen will put the homecoming date for next year (October 12) on reserve so that you may actively join in the festivities and renew many old acquaintances.

WASHINGTON D.C. UNIT

The annual meeting and election of officers of the D. C. Unit was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jarvie in Falls Church, Virginia. The tea table, which was most attractive, was highlighted by the lovely flower arrangement, the blossoms being from the Jarvie's garden.

This colorful theme was reflected in the other rooms where all could enjoy their beauty. (Perhaps, we seem pretentious about our blossoms and colorful shrubs at this time of year, but our Spring is always so short-lived! Before we realize it, summer is upon us!)

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Dorothy Ramale; Vice President, Naomi Funk; Recording Secretary, Mary Vail; Corresponding Secretary, Jane Palmer; Treasurer, Laura Gienger; and Members-at-Large: Kathryn Jarvie, Mary Smith, and Theda Stauffer.

A calendar for the following year was set up, the dates and arrangements for the different programs being somewhat flexible at the present time. However, the Annual Homecoming in October and the Alumni Workshop on the Campus (August 9-11) were included in the program.

If you move, notify Alumni Office of New Address.

At present we are all looking forward to attending the picnic June 2 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Anderson in Bethesda, Maryland. This is a very special meeting at which time we will celebrate the 25th Anniversary of the D. C. Unit. The Andersons have been our gracious hosts for so many years and their woodland setting always lends itself to an outdoor function.

The following guests were in attendance at the tea besides the Jarvies and their daughter, Mrs. Robert Miller: Dorothy Ramale, Mary Piraniau, her mother, Mrs. Caldwell and her sister, Mrs. Debbie Herman. Mrs. Warren Funk, Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw, Mrs. Guy Gienger and her sister Margaret. Mr. and Mrs. Graham Lehman, Mrs. Forrest Shaffer, who has rejoined our group (temporarily, at least) and we are so happy to have her with us again. Mr. William V. Whittington, Mrs. James T. Vail, Mrs. Donald Palmer, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith.

PHILADELPHIA UNIT

The mid-winter meeting of the Philadelphia Unit was held on March 9, 1968 at the Marriott Motel Restaurant on City Line Avenue.

A short business meeting preceded lunch at which time new officers were elected for the organization. Mrs. Patsy High will be the new president with Mrs. Margaret Viguers acting as vice president and Mrs. Mae Robinson as secretary-treasurer. Since there was present the unusual number of fifteen members it is hoped that a spark of new life has ignited within the group.

Following lunch and much reminiscing two interesting tours were made through WCAU and WFIL Radio and Television stations across the street from the Marriott Motel.

With new impetus adieus were made with wishes and hopes for a brighter future for the Philadelphia Unit.

PITTSBURGH UNIT

In spite of severe weather and treacherous driving conditions, our members were quite faithful in turning out for meetings during the winter months. Our Christmas party at the Park Schenley in Oakland was attended by sixty, husbands included. An interesting program by Ray Stewart, T.V. announcer for Station WJIC, was presented. It included colored slides of the Holy Land and discussion.

On March 19 we held our Spring Dinner at the College Club on Craig Street. The decorating committee, including our president Jeanine Dufresne, deserve a big hand for the favors, booklets, etc. Among our Indiana guests: yes, our own Mary Esch was there. Don McPherson, president of the Student Council, was our speaker for the evening and gave an interesting talk about Youth on Campus.

This year we have acquired one new Life Member, Marie Comyns, also five regular members.

Jeanine, our president, has done a truly great job this year. Her latest innovation is a committee headed by Audrey Graham to prepare written instructions to assist the new officers as to their duties and responsibilities for the coming years. Jeanine reminds us each month to remember our faithful friends of yesteryear who have now become inactive in the Unit.

Ann Carlyn is now living in Florida. Marianne Bambaugh, an honorary member, now resides in the States Nursing Home, Indiana Hill, Indiana. Mary Reardon, class of 1916, another honorary member, is living at the White Manor Nursing Home, 514 Whitman Street, Pittsburgh.

Now comes our last, but most important event of the year. It has always been a gala event, indeed. With Peg Shiels in charge again on May 18 at 12:30, all roads will lead to the Edgewood Community Clubhouse for a bridge luncheon. We are all working hard for this great party of the year. Heretofore it had been held in February so Jeanine planned to have it in May to suit the weather, making it possible for those in the outlying districts to attend. This concludes our year's work. Look for the new officers in your next bulletin.

NEW YORK CITY UNIT

Annual Spring meeting was held on Saturday, April 27, 1968 in a private dining room at the famous Top of the Sixes Restaurant. All those attending enjoyed the panoramic view from the 39th floor of this lovely building.

A business meeting followed the luncheon. Oran Overly presided.

Following the business meeting Mr. Overly introduced the many guests who attended our meeting. Among them were Bessie Wherry Noe's daughter-in-law and Mary Prugh McLaughlin's daughter.

Our guest speaker for the occasion was the noted author and alumna Agnes Sligh Turnbull. She gave us a most interesting talk on how one begins to write a novel and how the characters develop. We were all thrilled to learn that her newest novel will be coming out this fall. After her brief talk the author answered many questions asked by our members. One of our members asked if there was a possibility that some of her original manuscripts might be given to the Indiana University Library and we were all disappointed to learn that she had already been approached by the Curator of the Boston University Library for these same documents, and was thus committed to that institution.

Luckily one of our members had brought along a camera and many had their pictures taken with our famous guest.

Our deepest sympathy was extended to our former president of the New York City Unit, Mrs. Bessie Wherry Noe, whose husband died suddenly last March. Ralph Noe was very loyal to his wife's Alumni Unit and never missed one of our luncheons. We shall all miss him.

TRI-TOWNSHIP UNIT

The Tri-Township Alumni Unit of the Indiana University of Pennsylvania held its spring dinner meeting in the Penn Run Grange Hall April 29. Twenty-seven members and guests were present. The ladies of the Grange served a delicious dinner. Centerpieces of lilacs and apple blossoms and colorful favors decorated the tables.

Bagley, president; Mr. Charles Poydence, vice-president; Mrs. Sarah Thorburn, secretary - treasurer. Miss Bagley and Mr. Poydence will represent the Unit at the Executive Council meeting of the General Alumni Association in May.

The Misses Gloria and Anna Gromley, seniors of Purchase Line High School, sang two selections. They were accompanied by Mrs. Myrna Putt, vocal supervisor of the Purchase Line High School.

Mr. Wayne Ray showed slides and commented on a trip to Alaska taken by Mr. and Mrs. Ray last summer. The beautiful Banff and Lake Louise area of Alberta, the lengthy Alaska Highway, the centennial celebration of the purchase of Alaska from Russia, the Mt. INSTANO 1912

The Fairfax Dining Room provided a pretty setting for the spring meeting of Instano 1912. Varicolored tulips, snowballs and Chinese Rose Tree sprigs from Ruth Galer Reimer's and Alice Cook's gardens decorated the table.

After a delicious luncheon arranged for by the committee, Sarah Jones and Ruth Reimer Galer, notes from absent members were read.

A report on the 50th Reunion Scholarship Fund was read. Four students have received an award of $100.00 each, and we have a balance of $289.68. So three more students should receive aid from this fund, one this coming September.

Cards were signed by those present to be sent to Ruth O'Neil Bracken, Nellie Pardoe, Ethel McCullough Wallace, Agnes Young Wright, who have had a rough winter, and one of good wishes to Nellie Ramsay Cooper.

Florence Wallace brought us up-to-date news from Indiana.

Lillie List Herman, still in Florida, has been in touch with three of our classmates: Edith McWhorter on Davis Island, Tampa; Elizabeth James in Lake Worth; and Stella Rhodes White in Ormond Beach. They all sent greetings to our group.

Janet Little Banfield, Canonsburg, Pennsylvania; Verne Martin McKee and Sarah Stockhouse Esch, Pittsburgh, will serve as the committee for the Fall Luncheon to be held at The Fairfax on the first Saturday of November 1968.
